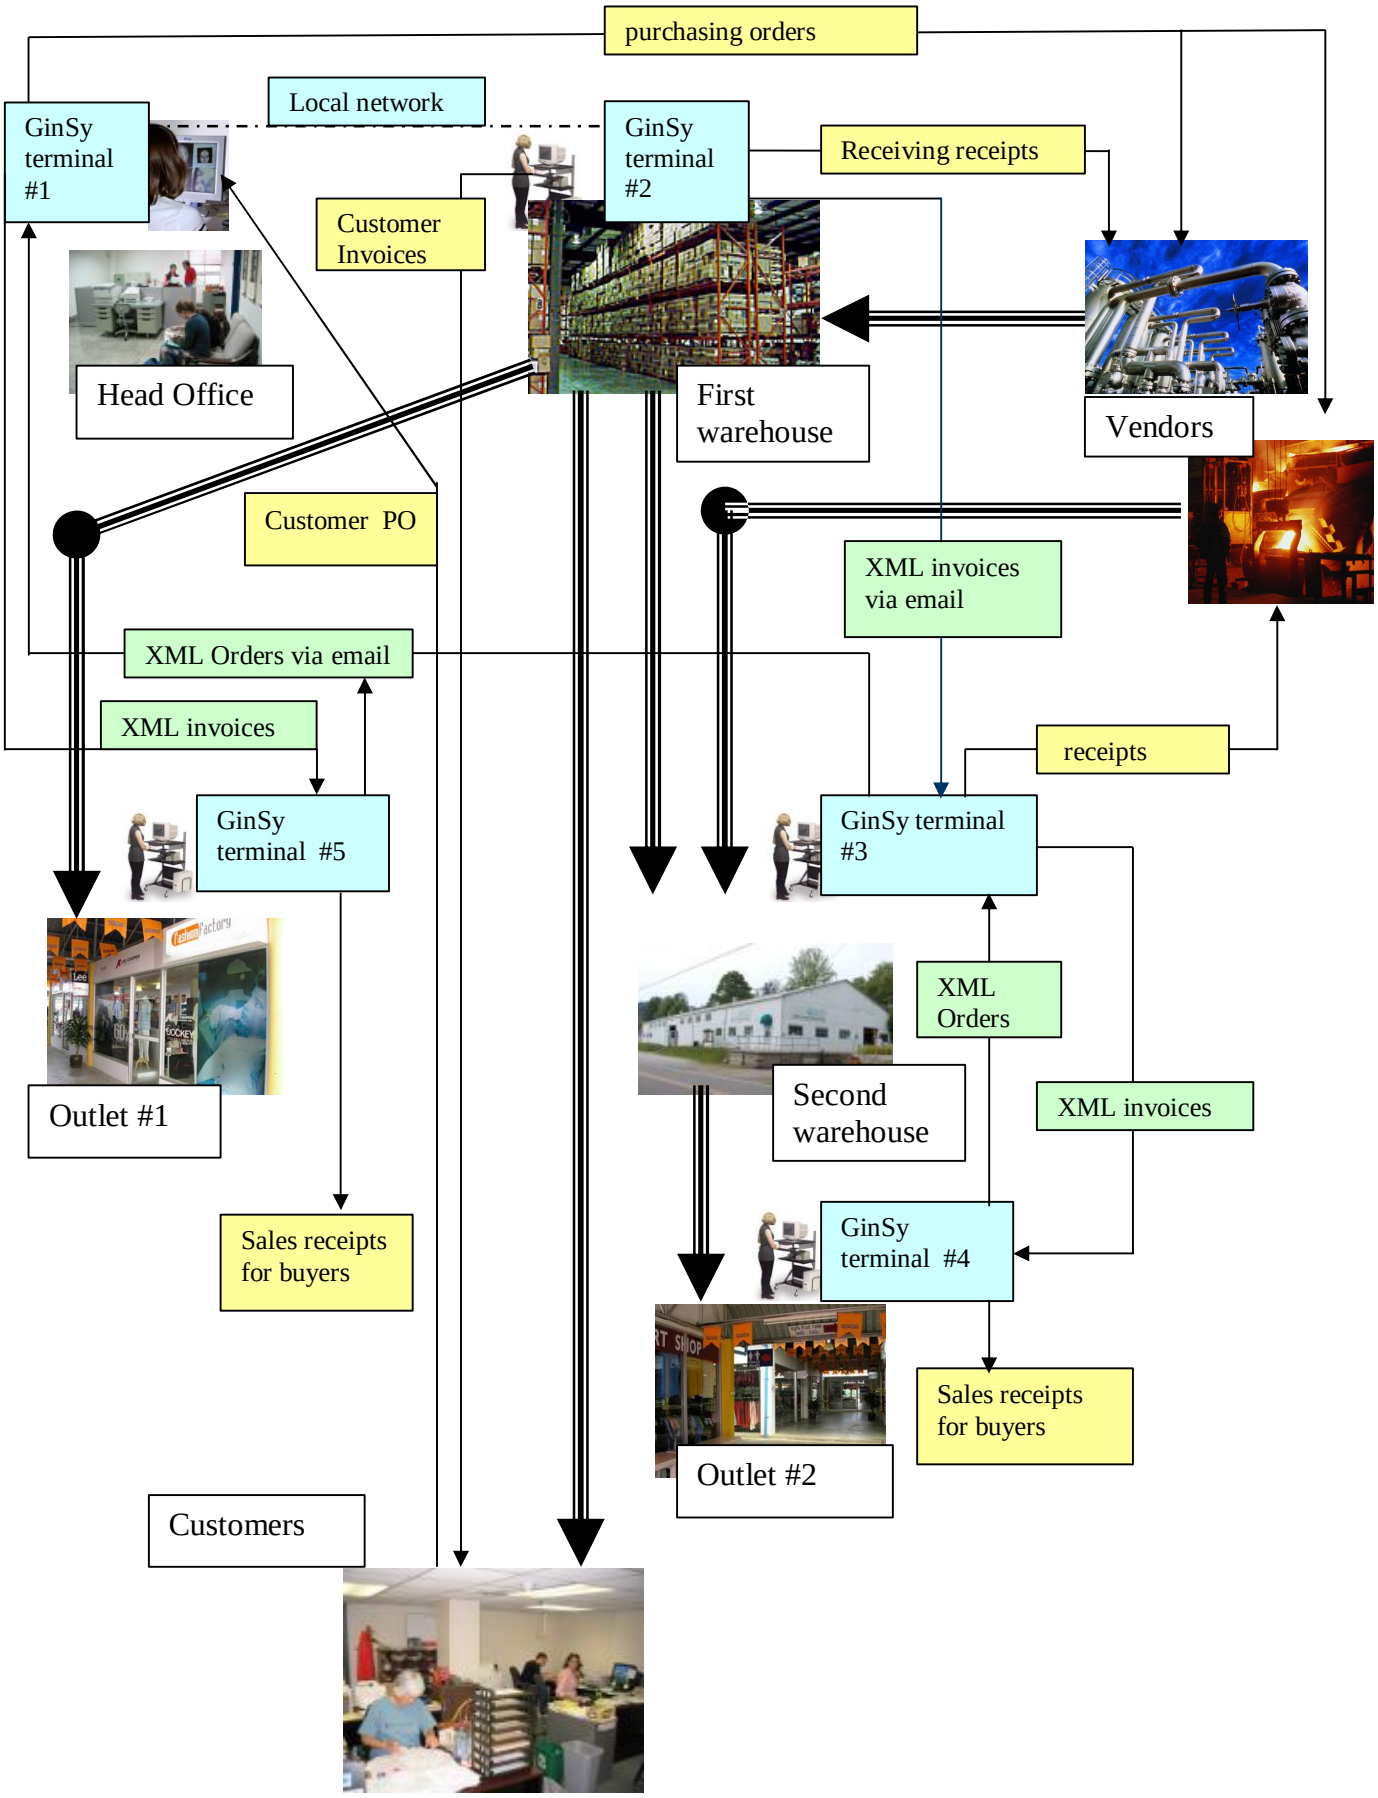
Using Golden Inventory System for remote warehouses and outlets



How can I automate my business? Use our Golden Inventory System. A truly successful automated business process will help your company achieve and maintain a competitive advantage. For example,you have main warehouse near company office.and several remote warehouse and outlets. You connect some computers using local network and work with remote workstations via email using special XML invoices and orders.

Open the Purchase Order Edit form and find the button Save XML. It is very useful function for data exchange with your main office or vendors. You save your order in XML file. Then you send this file to your head office via email or floppy disk or flash device. Main Golden Inventory System load this file and create invoice with necessary products for you and save this invoice in new XML file. When you receive the products you load XML invoice and your inventory system automatically will create receivng receipt

You can save your invoice in XML file. Then you send this file to your remote warehouse via email or floppy disk or flash device. When personal of remote warehouse will receive the products they load XML invoice and second inventory system automatically will create receivng receipt. You exclude the manual entering from your work.
